

Kayla Johnson is a REALTOR®, educator, published author, speaker, and advocate dedicated to advancing the real estate profession through leadership, education, and community engagement. She serves as Real Estate Training Specialist for The Gellman Team, where she develops and delivers training programs that help agents build successful and sustainable careers.

A committed leader in organized real estate, Kayla has served in leadership roles with St. Louis REALTORS®, Missouri REALTORS®, and the National Association of REALTORS®. Her service has focused on housing opportunities, advocacy, leadership development, and member empowerment, helping REALTORS® strengthen their businesses, expand their leadership capacity, and better serve their communities.

Beyond real estate, Kayla is a passionate autism advocate and community volunteer. She is committed to strengthening connections between REALTORS®, the association, and the communities they serve while helping shape the next generation.
